DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

1. The following is a quotation of the second paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall conclude with one or more claims particularly pointing out and distinctly claiming the subject matter which the applicant regards as his invention.

2. Claims 5-16 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention.

In claim 5, line 7, “an existing pole segment” is indefinite in that it is not clear if this is intended to refer to an identical pole segment, as based on the preamble.

In claim 9, line 8, “an extension pole assembly” renders the claim indefinite since it is not clear how an invention can encompass one of it self, in the context of the claims (see preamble). This is true also in claim 13.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

3. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

4. Claim 5 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Eichhorn, US Patent 5,779,386 or Schroeder, US Patent 3,091,790. In each of Eichhorn and Schroeder, an extension pole arrangement comprising at least one pole segment, each pole segment being substantially identical (relatively identical) and comprising first and second tube portions, said first portion of a given diameter and extending longitudinally from said second tube portion and terminating with an open end; said second tube portion having an open end with an inside diameter greater than the outside diameter of said first tube portion, and configured for receiving the first tube portion an existing pole segment; said first tube portion including a locking mechanism configured for contacting mating engagement with an aperture in said second tube portion for receiving said locking mechanism; whereby said substantially identical pole segments are conjoinable.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

5. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

6. Claims 6-16 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over either of Eichhorn or Schroeder, in view of Ross, US Patent 5,029,847. Neither of Eichhorn or Schroeder teach (1) the second tube portion being of substantial reduced length compared to the first, and (2) the protective cap means, as claimed.

Regarding (1), it would have been an obvious matter of design choice to make the different portions of the assembly of whatever form or shape was desired or expedient. A change in form or shape is generally recognized as being within the level of ordinary skill in the art, absent any showing of unexpected results. In re Dailey et al., 149 USPQ 47. Such a modification would produce no unexpected results and is not critical to the design.

Regarding (2), Ross provides such a compressible cap insert means at 34. The examiner serves Official Notice that it is old and well known in the art of tubular structures to use such cap means for both visual attractiveness, as well as to provide a protected end. It would have been obvious at the time the invention was made for one skilled in the art to have included in the design of either of Eichhorn or Schroeder such a modification, as generally taught in Ross, for the purpose of both visual attractiveness, as well as to provide a protected end.

Art Unit: 3676

7. Applicant's arguments filed <sup>1/24/05</sup>~~2/20/04~~ have been fully considered but they are not persuasive.

Applicant argues that Schroeder does not show a plurality of pole segments configured substantially the same. It is the position of the examiner that the claims of record do not adequately establish the degree of sameness of such a plurality of poles. The poles of the applied are at least substantially similar since the relative structure of the poles shown are the same.

8. Applicant's arguments with respect to claims 6-16 have been considered but are moot in view of the new ground(s) of rejection.
